All of the Universe is in the process of change: as we call it Piscean to Aquarian. The clashing of the old forms with the new demands for change, along with mankind's reluctance to let go of the old, has created many problems. Just as humans are working to adjust to the changing times, so too is nature. In the areas where man comes into active partnership with nature – gardening, forestry, conservation, farming, landscaping, etc – he has the opportunity to help facilitate nature's response to the transition. It is essential to our evolution in these areas that mankind open the door to nature and consciously link with nature in a new level of partnership so that we may work together to bring into form the necessary changes.

Through Dowsing one can communicate with the intelligence in nature and learn the best way to benefit all areas of nature [including ourselves]. One area in which I have worked with nature [Devas, Nature Spirits, and Elementals] is gardening, and I have learned a great deal. Since 1991 when I began gardening under the tutelage of these nature intelligences, the results have been a garden in which all inhabitants, be they animal mineral or vegetable, are truly compatible with one another, [that includes bugs.] I do not spray the bugs and they do not hurt the garden. The focus is to create a balanced, holistic environment in which all within that environment are enhanced. The results are not only more food than our family can eat, but also food that has contained within it a very high level of life energy—light.

It is my belief that mankind came into the Earth plane to learn practical lessons concerning the fusing of the soul power into form. This is what the nature intelligence level teaches me, and they are such great teachers.

I have made up charts for dowsing which make it much easier to work with Devas. I will be glad to share some of these with any class I teach.
